
Title: The Will of Deamonic Forces, Vol II

Author: Ethacca

<This book is in very poor condition, you
feel as though the
pages would fall right
out of the book if you held it wrong. There are bugs living
between the pages
and the binding is coming loose.>

Helthigos Bratha
Ketcha Beth Setch Val
Gosithagul Kn'ath'rak
Ba'alg Knesb Bethiltos
Xendaros Gnarithoz
Brekindo Petro'shall
Gewt'ui Un Nestrobal
Testro'shall Bacth
Gush'ba'da Xegral
Borhg'dak Gethatos
Knich'uo Gra'all
Bakro'do Sith Getoness' Gursh'shall

<On this page is an illustration of a man.>

Justragna Gethotus
Gradsh Ven
Thull'nuh'hell Xetch
Xern'dig'a Elegah'ho
Set Gul Nash'biko
Setal'go'to Metch Ungh
Hel'do Guida Nouah

<On this page is an
illustration, depicting
numerous animals,
including a horse, a
dog, and a bird.>

Titlecap'tha Shupa Del

Toro'bak Nosfentor
Bereeta'gal Seech
Og'thel Morph Gesh
Vel Bethinatial
Shasta'ka'vitch
Suk'tar'meth

<A Deamon, wearing a set of full plate, the likes of which you
have never seen before>

Urghitha
Narwhalinga Jusbafa Belthiar'net'ra Set
Certania Grush
Blel'eth Murgutha
Xorgichi Berge'hel

<Am inhuman, yet
beutiful city.>

<An intricate rune, probally magical.>

<A single Deamon
fighting off waves of human opponents.
The Deamon seems to be losing>

<A group of Deamons
that appear to be
praying to an altar of some kind.>

<Another complex
rune, this one is incredibly intricate>

<A human warrior
standing over the
corpse of a Deamon>

< A terrible beast.
With four legs and
two horns atop it's head, it oddly reminds you of some sort of Deamon Rabbit.>

<Another rune.>

<A group of Deamons
seemingly speaking
with a Wisp.>

<An army of humans
razing the beautiful
city from page 10. >

<The illustrations
continue like this,
most of them depicting
some ancient battle
between humans and Deamons. But they are interspersed by
ever more complex
runework. By the end of the book, there is hardly an illustration
to be found, but for the runes.>